Homebuyer Can't Move Until Developer Meets Standards

By Susan K. O'Neill

It seemed simple enough; the couple wanted to buy a home in Andover for their growing family. Through an agent at Cape Realty in Tewksbury, they found a suitable new house in "Phase III" of the 85-lot subdivision known as Olympic Village, located off River Street in the south of town.

They were prepared to make the big move when, suddenly, life became complicated.

Delays on the part of the developer in land stabilization, and in compliance with safety issues, led the town planning office to issue a "stop work" order—which meant that the builder had to clean up and stabilize his sites before he could resume construction on the newer of the 39 homes in "Phase III."

The order, issued on June 3, led to the town building department's refusal to grant the developer a certificate of occupancy for the couple's new house until they were satisfied that the required work had been done.

The denial of the certificate led to delays in the move-in day for the family (expectant parents with one young child, they would prefer not to see their names in print), which led them to temporary quarters in the home of friends—and, ultimately, to the floor of Tuesday night's Planning Board meeting.

The disgruntled homebuyers had been mistakenly informed by their real estate agent that the board would be holding a public hearing on their subdivision. Principal Planner Nancy Jeton told the board members. She explained to the couple that the delay in their move had happened because, in spite of inspections, re-inspections and reminders, the developer had not remedied a number of life-safety issues. These had initially included a buried fire hydrant, rubbish piled between houses, leaks in water and sewer lines, and a loam pile that could collapse on a child who might be tempted to play on it.

Some of the problems had, by now, been rectified—the hydrant had been uncovered and the leaks repaired. Some had not. Jeton said that her office had asked developer Chester Sullivan, of Spring Valley Development Corporation in Methuen, to clear the site and to stabilize the ground around the homes in Phase III by planting lawns. In her opinion, she told the couple, "you're very close to a point where you'll be able to move in."

"We're not angry with the town," the woman told Jeton and the board, "we're angry at the way this has been presented." Initially, she said, the family had been told that there would be a delay in their occupancy of their new home because of what they had been led to believe was a new problem; later, they had learned that the problem was an old one, one about which the developer had been aware.

Then, she said, another "new" problem would surface—and the occupancy date would again be delayed. She said that she had heard that, to be considered stabilized, the ground around the house would have to be covered by grass that is one inch high. "That looks like a long time, when the loam's not in yet," she said.

To the sympathetic chuckles of board members, the woman added, "You laugh—I don't have a house. I'm living

Mimes to Perform

The mime duo 'Dollie and Debbie,' back by popular demand, will perform their magical show, Mime Music, for the Department of Community Services Summer Program. As the name implies, Mime Music combines mime with music. It is a series of short character scenes. Dollie and Debbie introduce you to Myrtle the Wacky Witch, Larry the Tap Dancing Leak, Emery the Invisible Elephant, Crazy Betty and other surprising and zany characters.

Last year, Dollie and Debbie entertained youngsters while teaching them proper ways to handle medical emergencies in their 'First Aid Show.' The performing duo has traveled throughout New England as well as across the sea. They were invited to teach and perform in Jordan by Amman's prestigious Royal Theatre Club.

This year's Mime Music Show will be held at Shawsheen School on Wednesday, July 9, at 11:30. The show is designed for pre-schoolers. Entertainment runs for approximately 30 minutes. There will be a small admission charged at the door.

Circus Coming To Methuen

Clown Alley, a part of the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros circus coming to Methuen.

Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus has scheduled a three-day appearance at the Methuen Mall in Methuen. Performances will be presented at 4:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Monday, June 30, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 1 and 2.

The 1986 edition of the World's Largest Circus Under the Big Top promises to be the most spectacular ever, with a cast of more than 60 performers and 40 trained animals gathered from five continents to present the two-hour, three-ring extravaganza that always delights children of all ages.

This year, Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus features the incredible Josip Marcan and his Wild Animals, an awesome assemblage of three species of ferocious felines: lions, tigers and the unique new species which can only be seen performing at the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus, ligers. From mysterious Morocco, the Tangier Troupe excels in displays of whirlwind gymnastic gyrations and the construction of human pyramids; the amazing Ahmed balances a tower of human flesh—seven full-grown men, weighing a total of more than 1,000 pounds. High wire walkers, jugglers, aerialists, horses, flying trapeze daredevils, three herds of performing elephants and, of course, the Beatty-Cole clown contingent will all be on hand, backed up by the rousing sounds of the eight-piece circus brass band.

On Monday morning, June 30, mammoth Asian elephants will once again provide the power to erect the World's Largest Circus Under the Big Top. Everyone is invited to join the Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus at tent raising. Take a step back into childhood or share in a new, modern-day adventure, done the old-fashioned way—and you don't even have to carry a bucket of water.

AFS Student Gained Broader Understanding Of Life Here

By Susan K. O'Neill

Karen Bitler sits on the brocaded couch in the living room of David and Susan Wahr's house on Seneca Circle. On the floor beside her, the Wahrs' enormous, shaggy French sheep dog, Sage, perks his ears as she speaks.

"I've personally gained a lot," says Bitler. "It's been a long but short year—now that I look back, it just flew by, this year. It has given me a broader understanding of what life is about."

She is articulate, this 17-year-old Austrian with the thoughtful brown eyes. Her accent is soft and slight; she carries herself with a quiet self-confidence that belies the fact that she has been in Andover—and in this home—for only one year.

Bitler came to the United States from Vienna as an exchange student through the American Field Service program, which places more than 3,000 students and young adult professionals with American host families each year. She is the second full-year program student guest to live with the Wahrs in six years, although they have hosted a number of shorter-term boarders from other countries.

According to Sue Wahr, who has been a very active member of the Andover AFS chapter for the past 10 years, Andover High School has played host to one or two foreign students each year for twenty-two years. The students, who often receive financial aid from their governments to supplement family funding for the experience, are placed in senior year courses—usually on a level that makes allowances for anticipated language difficulties—and given the opportunity to "graduate" from the school.

This year, says Wahr, Bitler made "A's" in all her coursework and "graduated" with high honors. She adds that the young woman seemed to feel somewhat embarrassed because she had not been placed in a more challenging level of courses. "She's very intelligent," she says, "and her English is excellent."

Bitler had studied English for six years in her native Vienna, where she lived with her mother and her older brother, a dental student in the Austrian university system. She was urged to join the AFS program by her English teacher. "She thought I was a very independent person," she says.

Even with her background in the language, and the AFS preparatory meetings and counseling, Bitler found immersion into an all-English-speaking world a challenge at first. "No one spoke German, of course," she said. "If I felt weird speaking English all the time." Initially, she had to translate from one language to the other in her head. Then, gradually, she began to think in English; "Around Christmas time, I started to dream in English," she says. "Now, it feels weird speaking German."

Prior to coming to the U.S., Bitner had never spent more than a month away from home at one time. She credits the Wahrs, with their experience in hosting foreign students, for helping her adjust through the lonely first months of her stay. Christmas time, particularly, was difficult. She says that it was not the celebration of the holiday itself that underscored her loneliness—not being a religious person, she did not give the feast a great deal of significance. It was the season, she says—the long stretch of cold and rainy New England winter.

"Christmas was a turning point," she recalls. Afterward, her isolation seemed to lift; she found herself making new friendships at school and easing into her new life. "Ever since Christmas, time has been running by," she says.

Before her trip, Bitler had met the United States on television in Austria—"We have Dallas and Dynasty on T.V. there," she says wryly. She had thought of the country as one in which "it would be to my disadvantage to discuss foreign policy."

It surprised her, then, to find Andover more open to her liberal views than she had expected. And her views are liberal—even by Massachusetts standards. Describing herself as "strong-minded—I don't know if I'm narrow-minded, but I'm a strong-minded person," Bitler disagrees with much U.S. foreign policy and feels that American politics does not reflect the will of the people, as true democracy should. She considers herself a feminist, influenced by her reading, her ties to her country's Social Democratic Youth organization, and her experience in a home where divorce left her mother to raise her children by working as a nurse.

Clearly, Bitler has given her politics a great deal of thought—and she enjoys discussing her views. She will earnestly explain why she feels that living in a communal, rather than family, situation is better for the young: "I don't believe in family at all...there are not enough influences for a child." Or why she feels that groups—such as a few families, living in proximity—would do well not only to share child-care responsibilities, but to pool ownership of major appliances: "Shared machines—instead of everyone having a car and washing machines and so on—it would be so much more economical."

And, too, she will analyze her own opinions with a realism surprising in one so young: "Of course, if everybody did that, the economy would collapse."

Bitler admits that her fellow students seemed somewhat in awe of her lack of timidity in class discussions. "They often seemed to be afraid to speak, themselves," she says. But she feels that she might have helped broaden their perspectives; they seemed to listen to what she said.

To a point.

Sue Wahr, Sage and Karen Bitler

Bitler smiles slightly. For many of her Andover High classmates, she says, it was okay to discuss government policy—"But you can't criticize. There's this 'love it or leave it' attitude; once you make a statement that's somewhat negative, they think you're trying to offend them."

Often, Bitler found this nationalistic response both unsettling and illogical. "They would say, 'Reagan gave back the sense of pride by bombing Libya,'" she says. "And I would think, what sense of pride is it you get from bombing someone?"

For the most part, she felt that her fellow students viewed politics with an apathetic eye. If their attitude seemed younger than that of a European counterpart, it was probably because "you're treated a lot more like a child here than at home," says Bitler. There is, for example, a government-mandated minimum drinking age here. Also, there is a more lax attitude toward education. "Here, when you go to college," she says, "it gives you a couple more years to decide what you want to do." In Austria, however, where schooling is free, Bitler says that students are less apt to change their course of education—and that they tend to go to college for longer periods of time.

Bitler says that she enjoys meeting people, talking with them and learning of their experiences. She was prepared to find people in the U.S. somewhat different—and she did.

When she first got to the high school, she found herself staring at students who tottered over her in three-inch heels, their faces heavily made up beneath spiked hair. "I thought that it was a joke the first day of school," she remembers, shaking her head. "At my high school, people would laugh at you—I don't know why so many girls feel a need to do that." Maybe, she speculates, they are influenced by soap operas like "Dallas."

Andover itself presented a personality that she calls "very reserved." In Austria, she says, she felt comfortable walking into stores and greeting strangers; here, she feels that such a greeting is looked upon with uneasiness. "It's hard to get farther with people here than a 'nice weather' discussion," she says. "There's a wall or something." She gestures vaguely with hands tipped in long, darkly-enameled nails. "I've traveled in Canada and the midwest since coming here, and it's not the same there. It seems that it's just the way Andover seems to be set up."

There is a costly preoccupation with owning things here, too, Bitler notes. And a pressure to succeed: "People are so afraid to fail here," she says. "Whatever winning or losing means, they're afraid to lose. They've got to 'have it.' It's all very sad."

In matters deep and superficial, Bitler sees many differences between the U.S. and Austria. The U.S. is a land of highways; of huge supermarkets in which hundreds of boxes of cereal compete with each other, even though they're made by the same companies. It is the land of McDonalds and Burger King—"There are no little unique stores and cafes here, like there are at home," she

Sibling Program At Hospital

Bon Secours Hospital will present a Sibling Preparation Program, "Your Changing Family" on June 26 and July 13 at the Hospital, 70 East Street, Methuen.

Designed to ease the integration of a new sibling into the family, "Your Changing Family" is a two-part program. Part one, June 26, is a discussion class for parents with a social worker. During the evening session, issues such as having time for all children, preparing a place for the new baby, how to tell the older child about the baby, and what to expect from the older child will be covered. The needs of different age groups will be reviewed.

Sibling Sunday, July 13, is an afternoon (2:30-4 p.m.) sharing session for children and their parents. The children, ages 2 and up, actually visit the hospital's nursery, and "Mom's hospital room. They get hands-on diapering and feeding experience using dolls, while also discussing their feelings about the new baby. Through the program the children learn they have a special place in the family and even an important role in helping to care for their new brother or sister.

Registration is now open. There is a $15 registration fee which includes materials for the children's class. For more information, contact the Bon Secours Maternal and Child Health Care Services.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

There is actually date processing for a beginner - your baby! What's up? What's down? What's in or out? What's hard or soft? In the first year of life your baby is going to process more information about the world than in any year after. Babies are curious, ambitious and oh, so ready to enjoy every and all new experiences. There are activity toys that are fun and satisfy that natural urge to know. Babies learn new ways with their hands. There are buttons to press, knobs to turn and all this make something else happen. At first, your baby figures out that to make a bell ring, you push a red button. Without realizing it, your baby is applying a scientific method.

Are you looking for a baby gift? Come to TINY TOTLAND, where we carry furniture, accessories, wall decorations, lamps, toys, mattresses, carriages and much more. Open 9-5:30. M. & Th. 9-9.

Ninth Graders Receive Awards At West Assembly

Two hundred and two ninth graders were officially welcomed to the rarified air of high school last Thursday, as West Junior High held its morning graduation assembly in the school auditorium.

At the beginning of the hour-long ceremony, which was enhanced by performances by the West Side Singers and the West Junior High band, student council officers Katie O'Sullivan (president) and Lindsay McCracken (vice president) spoke briefly, welcoming the students, parents and school officials and reflecting upon the three-year junior high school career of the class of 1989.

Awards for scholarship, citizenship and outstanding participation in classes and activities were presented by school and school committee officials; in turn, the class presented the school a new fountain, featuring a sculpture of children huddled beneath an umbrella. The fountain will be installed in the school's open courtyard.

The following awards were given:

The John Grecoe Award—for athletics, scholarship, posture, habits, health and sportsmanship—was presented by David Amundsen to: Susan Bousch, Alison Burke, Shaleen Cassily, Jacqueline Kupa, Todd Musteraid and Matthew Pothier.

The Miriam McArdle Award for excellence in Music was presented by choral director Judith Palmer to: Caroline Gibson and Robert Lowry (choral music), and Kimberly O'Neill, Cheryl Sharpe and Mark Balboni (instrumental music).

V.F.W. Post 2128 awards for loyalty and Americanism were given by Assistant Principal Anthony Covino to: Deborah Brendle, Alicia Doherty, Margaret McConville and John Glynn.

Katie O'Sullivan presented the Anthony Stabile Award for Outstanding Athlete of the Year to Leeann Dziadosz, Paul DeMarco and Christopher McAnally.

The Janet Conte Memorial Award for excellence in foreign language study was presented by foreign language head teacher Lori Humlak to: Catherine Allard, Kristyn Burt, Jennifer Churias, Eszter Vajda, Kurt Brucato and Jeffrey Hechemy.

Receiving medals for Good Citizenship from teachers David Gangi and Bruce Dewire were: Kristen Carothers, Joyce Harkless, Lindsay McCracken, Cara Workman, Mark Balboni and Robert Labell.

Principal William Hart presented medals to student council officers O'Sullivan, McCracken, Margaret McConville (secretary) and Taryn Markey (treasurer).

Hart also gave the Principal's Award for high personal standards to: Katie O'Sullivan, Taryn Markey, Craig Knight and Matthew Salamone.

Dr. Leslie Loomis, assistant superintendent of schools, recognized the following students as Western Stars on the basis of character, courtesy, commitment, cooperation and citizenship: Catherine Allard, Sondra Barch, Thomas Be-

Kitchen Design

by David A. Clement, Designer
A BUILT-IN EXCUSE TO EAT

The architecture of a particular kitchen may make a booth the best solution for eating space. An alcove, a jog in the wall or a recessed window could be a starting place. However, one does not need an architectural excuse to install a booth. In cases where space simply will not allow chairs to be moved into or away from a table, a built-in eating space is the answer. The dimensions of a booth require 21 inches of table length for each person, and at least 15 inches of depth. By installing banquettes (seating units) around the table, less room is needed than would be the case with movable chairs. Depending on space and family size, a U shaped booth with seating on three sides may be installed. Designing a kitchen to maximize storage space, eating space and working space takes talent. You'll find this talent with the staff at WINDSOR KITCHENS. Our many services work hand-in-hand to give you the ideal kitchen. Our designers know that we have cabinets to fit any space and will still be utilitarian. Come talk to us at 1181 Boston Rd., Ward Hill to plan a kitchen that will suit your needs now and 10 years from now. 9-00-5-30 Daily; Wed. 9-8; Sat. 10-3 Tel. 372-3444

Concert

The mastery of flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal is celebrated at Castle Hill in Ipswich on Saturday, July 5. The evening opens with an outdoor concert by the musician aptly described as "one of the supreme wonders of the flute world" (Chicago Tribune). The event continues with a champagne reception for the artist.

Lauded for his ability to mesmerize audiences throughout the world with the emotion and range of his playing, Rampal is joined by harpsichordist John Steele Ritter for the 8:30 concert in the Italian Garden. The man with the gold flute will perform Telemann's Sonata in F minor, Leclair's Sonata in G major, Couperin's Concert Royal No. 4 and Bach's Sonatas in B minor, G major and E minor.

Concertgoers then gather in the tented courtyard to meet the distinguished soloist and conductor. While sipping champagne and sampling desserts, participants will be entertained by the music of Guy Van Duse and Billy Novick. The guitarist and reed and wind player interperse traditional Irish and Scottish music with 1930s jazz standards. Be it a blues, big band or folk selection, Van Duser and Novick infuse each song with their distinctive style and instrumental wizardry.

Summer Festival Of Music

Professional musicians and talented students from all across the United States will gather for the annual Summer Festival of Chamber Music, a program of the Phillips Academy Summer Session from July 9-30. The festival will begin its 11th season on Wednesday, July 9, with a concert by the Academy Chamber Players, the group of professional musicians who represent the teaching faculty for this summer music program. Student ensembles will be featured alternately with the faculty players in four additional concerts on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. in Kemper Auditorium on the academy campus.

Director William Thomas explains that the music for these concerts is selected from the standard repertory for chamber music, as well as for larger ensembles, in which students and faculty perform together. These larger groups include a string orchestra, woodwind ensemble, chamber orchestra, concert choir and symphony orchestra.

The works of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart (1756-1791) and his contemporaries will be featured on Friday evening, Aug. 1, and continue with concerts on August 2, 3 and 6.

Featured works include Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante, G. Major Flute Concerto, Oboe Concerto, Piano Concerto No. 21, D. Major Violin Concerto, Clarinet Concerto and the opera "Zaide."

Featured artists are Paul Goldsberry, violin; Peggy Friedland, flute; Sandy Consiglio, oboe; Dragana Bajalovic, piano; Eric Thomas, clarinet; William Thomas, conducting.

The concerts are free of charge.

Church Observing 275th Anniversary

South Church continues the celebration of its 275th Anniversary year. The parish is sponsoring a carillon concert by recitalist Sally Slade Warner in the Phillips Academy Memorial Tower on July 1 at seven pm. Other Anniversary events include a gravestone rubbing in the South Church cemetery on Sept. 14 and a social evening with fashions of the last 275 years on Sept. 25. During the Anniversary month of October, there will be a family night with Judith Black telling the story of South Church. On Oct. 19, there will be a special Anniversary worship, a costume parade to church, an historic display and the premier of celebration music commissioned for the Anniversary.

A design of South Church on an early American cup plate has been commissioned to commemorate this occasion. Cup plates were used in the early 19th century. Hot tea was served in handleless cups and poured into a saucer to cool. People drank tea from the saucer and placed the cup in a small plate to protect the linen and table top. The cup plate has been pressed by the Pairpoint Glass Company of Sagamore, Ma., and is available for sale in the Church office.

Vacation Bible School Planned

A Vacation Bible School will be held at the Ballardvale United Church (A United Methodist and United Church of Christ Congregation) the week of July 28-Aug. 1 for children aged three through the sixth grade.

This school is being held in cooperation with West Parish Church and the Greater Lawrence Council of Churches. The Rev. Dirkje Legerstee, Associate pastor, West Parish, and the Rev. Gary S. Cornell, pastor, Ballardvale United Church, are serving as the co-directors. Classes will meet from 9:30 a.m.-11:30 a.m. and this year's theme is: "Jesus the Teacher." The program will include worship, Bible stories, music, arts and crafts, and recreational activities. On Thursday of the week there will be a family picnic and children's program. All children of Andover are invited to register for the class and parents may register by calling the Ballardvale United Church.

At this Sunday's 10:30 a.m. Service of the Word, the church will have an Independence Sunday Service and Mr. Cornell's preaching theme will be "Sweet Liberty". This Sunday will also end the special June Church School Program, The Summertime Gang with its study of Noah and other Bible Stories.

Programs

Middlesex Community College will offer three new certificate programs, Hotel and Restaurant Management, Travel Services Management and Health Careers, beginning in September 1986.

The health careers certificate program will prepare students for general employment in the health fields while also assisting those students to prepare for a specialized health career if they do not have the required prerequisites, or they need academic help and support. Individual assistance in career counseling, selection of courses and the exploration of a variety of health careers will be provided by a program coordinator. Students can select courses in biology or medical technology, anatomy and physiology or mathematics, and current issues in health as a preparation or introduction to other health career programs at the college.

Focusing on the rapidly growing hospitality industry, certificate programs in Hotel and Restaurant Management and Travel Services Management will include a cooperative field experience through which students earn academic credit for paid work experience in a job related to their major. Course credits earned in the Hotel and Restaurant Management or Travel Services

Planners To Move Toward Master Plan For Town Roads

By Susan K. O'Neill

The Planning Board will soon take the first step toward the construction of a master plan for roads in the Town of Andover.

At Tuesday's meeting, board members agreed to draft a letter, in conjunction with Town Manager Kenneth Mahony, asking that the town Department of Public Works compile a list of factors which would have to be studied in order to formulate the plan.

The board made its decision, as an aside, during a discussion with Town Engineer John Avery of changes proposed by the DPW for regulations governing water line installations in new subdivisions. At one point, board member Paul Curley noted that wording in one section of the proposal implied that the town could require developers to replace lines leading to a new subdivision if those lines would prove inadequate to serve the site when developed.

"We have been told continuously that we can't require developers to do work outside a subdivision," he mused. However, he went on, this water provision would disprove such a prohibition.

Could the same philosophy applied in the proposal, he wondered, also relate to streets that were too small to serve a new subdivision?

Perhaps it could, said Physical Planner Steve Colyer—if there were a town master plan for streets upon which the charge of inadequacy could be based.

Board chairman Michael Houghton asked Avery if the DPW is considering the formulation of such a plan.

Avery demurred that his department was formulating a plan for the upgrading of pavement—but not a master plan for town roads.

Houghton asked Avery who should construct such a plan—the board, or the DPW.

Avery answered that it should probably be a joint effort between the two departments.

"It would not be inexpensive," noted Curley. If it were to be done, he added, he would like to see the board come before next year's town meeting with "a really strong plan to do this—with quotes from consultants."

Houghton directed the planning staff to "make a few calls" within the town departments to see how the board should proceed with the effort.

At this, Principal Planner Nancy Jeton informed the board that she and former board chairman Margaret Bradshaw had met a number of times with Bob M. Quade, the head of Andover DPW, to discuss the issue of formulating a master plan for roads. M-Quade had said

Eleven Hearings Scheduled Before Zoning Board

The Zoning Board of Appeals will hold public hearings on Thursday, July 10, at 6:30 p.m. in the School Committee Conference room, School Office Building, second floor at the Whittier St. entrance. Eleven petitions will be brought before the board.

Eric J. and Pamela L. Lundstrom, 409 South Main St., are petitioning for a variance to allow the continued use of an existing porch which does not meet minimum side yard setback requirements and to construct a second floor over the existing dwelling which will not meet minimum front yard setback requirements.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oman, 100 High Plain Road, are petitioning the board to allow the addition of a two-stall garage, playroom and second story bedroom. The addition will not meet minimum dimensional requirements.

Florence D. and Alfred F. Cook, 11 Glenwood Drive, are petitioning for a special permit to allow the construction of an addition to serve as an in-law apartment to assist in the care of Florence D. Cook.

A variance will be requested by Thomas V. and Mary L. Marcello, 12 Stirling St., to allow the addition of a garage and deck which will not meet minimum dimensional requirements.

Mr. and Mrs. David P. Viola, 11 Cabot Road, are petitioning for a variance to allow an addition to the kitchen which will not meet minimum rear yard dimensional requirements.

Richard K. Gordon, Marion E. LaGrasse and Edward A. Gordon are petitioning to allow the continued existence of a dwelling at 359 Lowell St. although it does not meet minimum dimensional requirements and to allow the continued use of a two-family dwelling which existed prior to March 10, 1941. The dwelling exists in what is presently a Single Residence district.

Daniel J. and Barbara A. Collins, 72 Chestnut St., have petitioned for a variance to allow the continued existence of a dwelling which does not meet minimum dimensional requirements and to allow the addition of a porch which will not meet side yard setback requirements.

Wayne and Daryl Arsenault, 3 Ferndale Ave., have petitioned for a variance to allow the construction of a front porch and rear deck which will not meet minimum dimensional requirements.

John J. Spires, 325 Lowell St., has petitioned for a variance to permit the conversion of a non-conforming single family dwelling located in a Shopping Center district into a two-family dwelling.

R. M. Bradley, 1 Tech Drive, has petitioned to allow the construction of a sign to be placed on an island at the entrance of Shattuck Road.

Ralph D. and Dorothy J. Rossetti, 5 Brown St., have petitioned for a special permit to allow the construction of an in-law apartment for the parents of the petitioner.

Annual Sidewalk Bazaar

Leadership Roles

The school committee last week approved a reorganization of leadership roles within the school system which, at cursory glance, will lead to improvement in the school system.

Teachers currently in the system will be assigned such titles as team leader, house master, special project leader, etc., all dedicated toward one goal, improvement of the curriculum and overall attentiveness to the modern needs of the educational process.

Aim of the new plan to be implemented in the fall is streamlining the administrative aspects of curriculum and instructional organization; revise curriculum as needed; improve classroom teaching as needed and establish and standardize evaluation techniques for curriculum and instructional programs.

The plan will lead to a streamlining of responsibilities and reporting processes which should make for a system-wide understanding of the town's educational program.

Not only is the plan a commendable one, but also economical, costing in the vicinity of $45,000 to $55,000 for implementation.

It will take advantage of talented educational personnel currently in the school system.

They will fit into their leadership roles through the use of minimal reduction of classroom time, which is even further facilitated by a slight drop in enrollment.

There will be some drawbacks initially due to the time of year the plan was presented and adopted.

But administrators will be working out the details over the summer months and be prepared for implementation when classes resume in September. The delay will only moderately deter the effectiveness of the plan, it is felt.

While its full effects may not be seen during the coming year, the development of new leadership functions with attention to curriculum and instructional organization can be looked upon as a positive step in keeping Andover's educational system up to date.

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago—June 1911

The residents of High street were considerably interested last Saturday afternoon and Sunday in the operations of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howard of Malden, bee fanciers, who were engaged in removing the swarm of bees recently uncovered in Dr. Fred Bickell's house. The bees had for ten or twelve years made their home under the coving on the north side of the house, and their presence there had been the cause at times of considerable annoyance to the occupants of the house. The climax came last week, when the painters suddenly felt the coving give way, and a second later found themselves in the midst of a general mix-up of staging, paint, pieces of woodwork, and angry bees.

Not for many years, if ever, has there been such a demand for local farming property as at the present time. Much of this demand comes from people who desire to come to Andover from Boston or other cities and settle in communities like this. Such a demand does not, however, justify some of the exorbitant prices that are being asked for farms that are in the market. If this high price demand continues, it will be the duty of somebody to see that the values fixed by the assessors more nearly approximate the values that the owners place upon their property, than they now do. Andover does not want to lose any of her residents, but there is plenty of area available for home builders to make the town very inviting for many new residents...

The authorities at Phillips Academy have decreed that Phillips Hall, one of the dormitories recently purchased from the Seminary trustees, is in such condition that it will not pay to do the work of reconstruction necessary to make it safe for further occupancy.

The fifty-second Commencement exercises of the Punchard school were held this week under auspicious circumstances. The crowning point of the week's events was reached last night, when, in the town hall, the class, consisting of twelve girls and ten boys, was graduated.

50 Years Ago—June 1936

Sixteen boys and ten girls were awarded diplomas at the annual graduation exercises of St. Augustine's school held at the 9:45 mass Sunday morning. Rev. Albert A. Durant, O.S.A., of Lawrence, ordained recently, celebrated the mass, and Father Austin awarded the diplomas and prizes.

Miss Isabel MacIaren and John C. Moynihan have been each awarded half of the Draper scholarship this year by the trustees of the Punchard Free school. Miss MacIaren is to enter Boston University and Moynihan will go to Boston College.

Friends of the late H. Winthrop Peirce will be interested in the Memorial Exhibition of his work at the Addison Gallery, which opens June 27 and will continue until July 19. Mr. Peirce is represented in the permanent collection of the John-Esther Gallery of Abbot Academy by "Under the Chancel Window," and is also represented at Phillips Academy.

Thirty-two hundred quarts of ice cream and 3096 frankfurts were passed across the counter Sunday as Howard Johnson's new grille opened on South Main street near the over-pass. A steady stream of customers kept the large staff of clerks busy from early afternoon to after midnight. At times there were ten deep lined up around the counter in the ice-cream wing as the customers sought to take advantage of the opening day two for the price of one special....The traffic problem was a serious one, with three special officers having to take care of the large number of machines, some of which, overcrowding the large parking space, had to park on the other side of the roadway.

The summer playground will open for the summer on Wednesday afternoon, this year for the first time with branches in Ballardvale and Shawsheen Village. The three playgrounds will be open for five days a week from two until dark.

25 Years Ago—June 1961

The Rev. W. Carter Johnson, B.A., B.D., has accepted a call from the Andover Baptist Church, and will assume his new pastorate July 23.

Andover's school population just grows and grows. With schools just closed and not slated to open again for more than two months, it is apparent that 3,644 boys and girls will attend sessions in September. That's nearly 100 more than the enrollment in September, 1960.

Befriending A Pigeon

By Susan K. O'Neill

There is a bird on my front porch.

It is a pigeon.

It is the biggest, oldest, scruffiest, ugliest pigeon in this small and peaceful town. To see it is to itch to kick it.

But raise your foot, and it fixes you with hot, malicious red eyes. And, as the hair stands up on your neck, you realize that this pigeon came straight off the set of a certain Alfred Hitchcock movie.

It is waiting—lurking—at the door to the screened-in porch. It wants in. It thinks it lives there.

The inside of that porch looks as if it lives there—the floor, especially. Kim says she'll clean it up. Soon. Really.

If the pigeon doesn't peck through the screen door and reclaim the place first.

My daughter left to deliver her papers a few weeks ago and returned with the pigeon. It was stiff and cold; it had been mauled by a cat. Being a humanitarian (pigeotarian?), she conned her father into taking it to a veterinarian.

Right. A pigeon. To the vet.

I'd told her before that it's illegal to keep wild-life in the house. The vet, however, assured her that no one would give her grief about keeping a pigeon. Especially, she said, this pigeon.

She then gave—sold—Kim salve for its wounds and antibiotic drops to force down its gullet three times a day.

Under her care, the bird revived. It slipped out of its box; it stalked the floor.

My office floor.

As I mopped that floor, teeth clenched, I demanded that Kim set the pigeon free.

"It can't fly yet," she snapped. "After all this care, you can't make me set it out where some cat can kill it!"

She put it in the screened porch.

Every morning since, as I have passed its screen door on my way to the car, the bird's malicious stare has followed me. Once when I sat on the steps to enjoy the sun, it threw itself against that door (Thud. Thud. Thud.) until I fed it. Then it simply watched me. And watched me.

I couldn't stand it—I left.

Because I refused to believe that it would be staying on, I initially refused to buy it bird seed. So Kim fed it gerbil treats—at two bucks a box. Three boxes later, I bought it bird seed.

Every day, Kim has taken it out and tossed it into the air to see if it could fly yet. Every day, it has refused to make the effort. Why should it fly, this bird that has its own cat-proof hotel with room service and a staff of five?

Was it my imagination? Or, when she put it back, did I actually see a gleam of triumph in its red, beady, evil eye?

Today I put my foot down. At last, at my insistence, Kim has set the pigeon free. For good. Soon, when she cleans it, the porch will be ours once more.

She put the pigeon out an hour ago.

Now it's back. Waiting. Staring at the screen door.

I'm not sure I want to go out there.

says wistfully. "On the other hand, you can feel at home everywhere, I suppose, if you like McDonalds."

She cringes and adds, "I hate McDonalds."

Austria's roads sometimes dwindle into dirt paths, in which the motorist might find himself face to face with a cow. In Austria, Bitler chose among ten, or a dozen, boxes of cereal. And, after classes, she met with her friends in the cafes of Vienna for a drink or a good political discussion.

But beneath those differences, she maintains, she has found that people themselves differ little. "Once you get behind those walls," she says, "it's the same, people here and there."

This Saturday, Karen Bitler will take leave of her host family to go on a two-week trip with other area AFS students. As is policy with the AFS, the Wahrs will not know where she is going; the purpose of the trip, as Bitler explains it, is to give all parties a hiatus between the time a student spends in the U.S. and the time he or she leaves. A clean break, says Bitler.

Afterward, she will return to Vienna. She will return to her school system, take her exams, and move on to her senior year while making up 11th grade schooling that she missed by going abroad (she receives no credit for coursework taken in the U.S. because of differences in the systems). Although she will be picking up the familiar tempo of the life she left behind a year ago, Bitler feels that she herself will not quite be the same.

"My basic personality didn't change," she says. Then she pauses. Thinks. Strokes the shaggy head of the dog, who is now resting his chin upon the couch cushion. "I gained this year. I learned a lot about myself—how I handle situations."

There is another pause, then, "Next summer, I plan to travel in Europe. It's interesting: in Europe, people view distances as huge..." She warms to the subject; this is, once again, the Karen Bitler who likes to probe a thought, discuss a theory. "In the U.S., distance is nothing. Perhaps it's your highways—there are so many of them. I don't understand, now, why I've never been to France. I think I'll never be able to settle down in one spot."

Andover Gold Takes Opener Over Intra-town Rival

By Rick Harrison

Defending champion Andover Gold launched its 1986 Greater-Reading Pony League season on a successful note last weekend, spotting intra-town archrival Andover Blue an early 2-0 lead before roaring from behind for a 7-4 victory at the Andover High field.

Gold, which has won four league titles in the last five years (three in the now extinct Greater-Lawrence Babe Ruth League), was sparked by the pitching of righthanders Mike Giammasi and Scott Wallace along with the clutch hitting of Chris Concemi and Tom Murray.

Giammasi (1-0) tossed the first 5-1/3 innings, surrendering all five Blue hits while walking four and striking out three. Wallace hurled 1-2/3 frames of hitless relief, retiring the last four batters he faced after permitting a pair of walks.

Glenn Allard was the hard-luck loser for the Blue, firing a complete-game six-hitter, walking three and whiffing four. He was victimized by five errors, however, that led to several unearned runs.

Blue jumped to its quick 2-0 lead in the top of the first, after Gold shortstop Scott Wallace made a fine game-opening play against leadoff batter Matt Pothier.

John Moossa followed with a long double to right-centerfield, some fine backup work by outfielder Chris Lane holding the hit to a two-bagger, and then Allard drilled an RBI triple to approximately the same spot.

Allard raced across with the second run on a wild pitch, but Giammasi settled down nicely thereafter.

Gold went down 1-2-3 in the bottom of the first, as did Blue in the second, and then AG tied it with a pair of runs in the last of the second.

Chris Concemi grounded a ball to deep short and was safe when the throw went astray. Concemi took third on another misplay and scored on a wild pitch. Mark Tucker walked and eventually came home on a single by Glenn Farnham.

Blue collected an unearned run in the third. Pothier walked, Moossa bunted him to second, and a subsequent throwing error on the play enabled Pothier to circle the bases.

Gold retaliated with four runs in the bottom of the stanza, Andy Shea and Scott Wallace starting things off by reaching on back-to-back errors.

Tom Murray lofted a run-producing double to right-centerfield, Concemi lashed a two-strike, two-run single to left, and Concemi later trotted home on a perfect suicide squeeze bunt by Chris Lane.

Gold came up with a key defensive play in the fourth, after Blue put runners at second and third with one down. Tom Tormey had singled, Scott Lanouette walked, and both runners advanced on a throwing error.

Todd Musteraid then laced a line drive to shortstop, Wallace stabbing the ball and doubling the runner off third to end the inning and the threat.

Blue notched its final run in the sixth on Tormey's one-out single and consecutive two-out walks to pinch-hitter Chris Eggert, pinch-hitter Brett Hammond and Joe Iarrobino (RBI).

Wallace, who had entered to pitch to Hammond, averted further trouble when the next batter skied to leftfielder Doug Howes.

Gold got the run back in the bottom of the sixth as Andy Shea drew a one-out walk, took second on Wallace's bunt, and scored when Murray beat out an infield hit that also produced a throwing error.

Wallace then retired the heart of the Blue batting order 1-2-3 in the seventh on a tapper to the mound, pop to second baseman Shea and foul pop to catcher Concemi.

Murray finished the game 3-for-4, Mark Tucker added a double, and both Shea and Concemi scored twice apiece for AG.

Tormey was 2-for-3 and Pothier spanked a single for Blue.

Rightfielder Chris Lane and Wallace were defensive standouts for Gold.

Schedule

Gold now faces a stretch of five straight road games, beginning earlier this week at the North Reading Braves (Tuesday) and at Lynnfield Gold (Wednesday). The defending champs also travel to face the Stoneham Cubs tomorrow eve-

Cardinals 9 - Pirates 2

The Cardinals put the finishing touches on an undefeated season by defeating the Pirates 9-2 last Wednesday evening. The Cardinals record was 12-0 in league play and 130 overall. A four run fifth inning highlighted by a Brian Bradley 3-run homer (his fifth of the season) put the game on ice for the Cardinals. Bradley finished the regular season with 41 runs batted in.

The game was closely contested during the first three innings as strong pitching by Jeff Brammer of the Cardinals and Danny Atkins of the Pirates kept the score to 3-2 Cardinals after three. Two runs in the fourth and four more in the fifth plus two shut-out innings of pitching by Todd Harris put the game out of reach for the Cardinals. Brammer struck out 7 in four innings and Harris struck out 6 in his two innings to bring his total to 95 strikeouts in 36 innings this season. Atkins struck out 7 Cardinals during his stint.

Cardinals hitters were Brian Bradley and Todd Harris 3 hits, Craig Edwards 2 hits, and Steve Neal, Glen Aeder, Jason Loomer, David Poulo, and Brian Lee 1 hit. Francis Mahoney had the sole Pirate hit. Both Pirate runs were driven in by Chris Payne while Brian Bradley (5), Craig Edwards (2), and Brian Lee and Glen Aeder (1) accounted for the Cardinals runs.

Orioles 8 - White Sox 4

In a game that was much closer than the score indicates, the Orioles defeated the White Sox 8-4 in eight innings.

The Orioles opened the scoring in the first when John Bowman singled to left. Shawn Garrity singled to right scoring Bowman all the way from first base. Ron Rygwalski singled home Garrity who had taken second on a passed ball. White Sox pitcher Mike Farniglietti proceeded to settle down and pitch no-hit, scoreless ball through the sixth inning.

Orioles pitcher Chethan Harish allowed one unearned run in his three innings of work, striking out seven batters. The White Sox tied the game in the fourth when Scott Eggert reached on an infield hit and scored on an infield out. The score remained 2-2 at the end of six. The Orioles Rodd Malitsky relieved Harish and pitched effectively for two innings, giving way to Paul Durant, who eventually gained the win.

In the Oriole seventh Harish singled and scored on Durant's double. The Sox came back in the home half to tie the score again when Farniglietti rescued base runner Jim Offria who had doubled.

The Orioles scored five in the eighth to clinch the game. Adam Goddess reached on an error and scored on Rygwalski's double. Chad Bowman walked and Malitsky tripled to bring home Rygwalski and Bowman. Malitsky scored on an infield out as did Durant who had walked. The White Sox final run scored on an RBI single by John Melillo.

The game featured several outstanding defensive plays to include the Sox' Bobby Sheehan who robbed Brian Workman and the Orioles Rygwalski with a couple of nice plays at first. Orioles third baseman Durant turned a double play with a force at third and a flip to Bowman at second. Orioles outfielder John Bowman had two putouts and workman one.

Twins 3 - Orioles 0

The Twins and Orioles tangled in a real pitchers duel, although five pitchers participated in the action. The Orioles were restricted to only one hit, while the Twins collected only three. Keith Bilger started on the mound for the Twins, while Chetham Harrish started for the Orioles. Both pitchers were effective in the opening frame.

In the top of the second, a hit better and a walk gave the Twins two runners, but Harrish retired the next three. In their half, the games only error put a runner on first. After an out, Harrish collected the only hit off of Bilger. A walk loaded the sacks, but the Twins escaped unscathed.

In the fourth, the Orioles brought on Chad Bowman. A hit batsman, two walks and a single by Greg Poor gave the Twins the first tally of the game, but Ron Rygwalski initiated a rally ending double play. The Twins relieved with Poor, who over three innings gave up no hits and only two free passes. In the fifth, Orioles reliever Paul Durant walked Brian Hussey. Robert Miele then ripped a ball to deep left center, but John Bowman made the defensive play of the game by running the ball down for a long out. Hussey scored on Mark McKenna's single. In the final frame, Tim Plakey scored on an infield hit by Peter Gighotti giving the Twins the 3-0 victory.

Indians 9 - White Sox 3

Mike Daley scattered six hits through six innings of pitching to lead the Indians to a 9-3 victory over the White Sox. Meanwhile Kevin Murphy also pitched strongly striking out eight and allowing only five hits. The Indians however put the hits together at the right time to earn the win.

Murphy also led the White Sox hitters with a

Safety

Even a carefully-tuned, well-maintained car can break down without warning, and when a breakdown happens during summer vacation it can be especially frustrating.

AAA Merrimack Valley suggests you keep a "summer survival kit" in your car just in case the unexpected happens. Many of the items in the kit are common household products - others can be bought inexpensively - and can be packed in a box and stored in your car's trunk.

Among the AAA-recommended items: Jack, spare tire, and tire-pressure gauge

- Reflective warning triangle and or safety flares
- Waterproof flashlight and batteries
- First aid kit
- Basic hand tools (screwdriver, pliers, adjustable wrench)
- Roll of duct tape
- Fire extinguisher
- Old blanket, coat or rain slicker (for protection or to kneel on)
- Jumper cables
- Plastic gallon jug of water

"Be prepared - that's always good advice for motorists," says Kevin P. Clement, Manager of Emergency Road Service for AAA Merrimack Valley. "Our summer survival kit can help give you peace of mind and confidence on the road this summer."

Bill DeLuca at his newest showroom

William Pontiac, Inc.: A Look That's Expensive, A Price That's Not

The DeLuca Corporation has done it again. On Monday, June 23, Bill DeLuca acquired Fossarelli Pontiac located at 503 River Street-Route 110, Haverhill. The new dealership, which will be known as William Pontiac, Inc., becomes the third dealership owned by the DeLuca Corp. whose other dealerships include Woodworth Chevrolet-Cadillac in Andover and Bill DeLuca Chevrolet in Haverhill.

With gas prices down and local tourism up, what better way to spend your summer vacation than in a new car from William Pontiac, Inc. They offer a wonderful selection of automobiles, all newly redesigned and with most offering front-wheel drive. Specifically, DeLuca's new dealership carries the economical T1000, the Cavalier-like Sunbird, the sporty Grand AM, the flashy Firebird and Trans AM. Also included are the traditional full-size Parisienne, the intermediate-size Bonneville and the front-wheel drive 6000 which boasts one of the top ten models in the world, the STE.

Merrimack Valley for 30 years. His promise to you is to live up to his reputation for selling quality automobiles backed by superior service.

William Pontiac, Inc. will be handling sales of new and used automobiles, service of all makes and models, and leasing as well.

Judy DeLuca, Maria Reitano and Priscilla Hebert welcome you to Kampus Kuts
Kampus Kuts: Our Customers Come First

Located amidst the serenity and elegance of the Andover Inn on the grounds of Phillips Academy is Kampus Kuts, a delightfully quaint hair salon. "Small", "personal", "quaint" and "quiet" are some of the complimentary adjectives customers use when describing Kampus Kuts.

Maria Reitano, owner of Kampus Kuts, carefully tends to her customers with the help of stylists Judy DeLuca and Priscilla Hebert. Much to the delight of her customers, Priscilla is returning to Kampus Kuts on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

Don't let the name fool you, Kampus Kuts is a salon designed for the smallest child to the mature adult, male or female. Choose from blow cuts, wet cuts, frosting, perms, hi-lites or a variety of services geared to meet your needs. Men can get a businessman's dry cut, blow cuts, beard and moustache trims. Prices are reasonable and special children's prices are available for those under ten.

"Yes We Have French Dip" means that Dubonnet nail tips are carried. The KMS line of hair care products are offered for your purchase as well as the Sebastian "cellophanes". Cellophaning is a hair coloring technique which causes no side effects such as skin or eye irritation. Cellophanes contain no ammonias or peroxides and boast a hair color with nothing but shine. Cellophanes are known as the "no-colour colour".

Come to Kampus Kuts and request anything from the ultra-conservative to the far-out spike look. Marie and her staff at Kampus Kuts want you to know that your needs are their foremost concern. Give Kampus Kuts your test. They'll pass with flying colors. Make an appointment at 470-1544 or walk-in to Kampus Kuts (enter the Andover Inn, turn right and follow the signs); open 9-5 Mon-Sat.

COUNTER OFFERS

You're selling real estate. You have told a prospective buyer how much you want for your property, and he has delivered an offer to you. He says he wants to buy, but he won't pay as much as you want. Likewise, you won't agree to sell for the figure the potential buyer says he is willing to pay. You would, however, sell for less than your original asking price. Now is the time for a counteroffer.

As with an offer, the best way to make a counteroffer is in writing, setting out exactly what your new terms are. Nothing of significance should be left out. This means, in addition to the new price, such important items as how long your counteroffer will be open and whether you are willing to provide some or all of the financing in order to obtain the price you want. You should spell out EXACTLY to what extent you are willing to engage in owner financing, including the interest rate and term of years for the repayment. The written counteroffer should include a space for the buyer to sign his acceptance. Once he has signed, a legally binding contract is created.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Pouchard Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

Realty U.S.A.
Schruender Real Estate

REFINANCING YOUR MORTGAGE

If you've purchased a home during the last few years, you may be paying a relatively high interest rate on your mortgage. Depending on your individual circumstances, refinancing your loan at today's lower rates could save you a lot of money.

There are considerable costs involved in most refinance transactions. First, you'll have to pay some points (a point is 1 percent of the amount of your loan). Then you'll have to get a new title search, a termite inspection report, and there will be some legal fees involved. In return, however, you may find yourself with a lowered mortgage payment. In deciding whether or not it makes sense in your case, the biggest factor is the length of time you plan to remain in your home. For just a year or two, it may not pay. Your Realtor can help you work out the numbers that apply to your case and refer you to reputable lenders with competitive rates.

The professionals at Realty USA, Schruender Real Estate are ready to serve all of your real estate needs. Please give us a call at 685-5000 or visit our offices at 73 Chickering Road, North Andover. We're happy to serve all your real estate needs.

with friends right now."

She asked the board for a list of the remaining requirements which must be met by the builders in order to secure a certificate of occupancy, "so we can get on the builder to get it done." She added that she had visited the site a number of times, to find the building crew absent or otherwise engaged: "They're not really extending themselves to take care of the problem," she said.

Jeton explained that the builder had received the entire list of issues that had to be remedied before the "stop work" order could be lifted; he had been responsible for his own piecemeal presentation of the problems and delays to his clients. She indicated that the issues she had listed for the couple at the beginning of the meeting were, to her knowledge, the only violations hindering occupancy, and reiterated that she felt that the builder would remedy the situation soon.

"Can you, like, call him every day?" asked the woman.

"You don't think we do?" Jeton answered quietly.

"I see him every day," said Colyer.

The woman asked if there was anything else that could be done to make her family's situation "work more smoothly."

Colyer explained that, insofar as hastening the builder's progress, the planning office was using its most effective leverage with the "stop work" order. "We're costing him money now," he said.

walled" the project, she said—apologizing for her bluntness.

Unless the board could secure some indication that the DPW was truly interested in aiding with the plan, said Jeton, she did not wish to meet with the department again on the issue. If the DPW showed no interest, she said, "we would be whistling in the wind—and I've got too much to do to waste time whistling in the wind."

The board then agreed to contact McQuade by letter town manager.

Once the required work is done, he added, the Planning Board will be limited in its ability to solve any further problems inherent in the family's new ownership. "If you're unhappy with the house or yard after it's put in," he said, "don't come back to the Planning Board. It's a civil matter."

ANDOVER TOWNSMAN

Kingston 1686 House Celebrates 300th Anniversary

Dining At The Area's Finest

Dining out, once reserved for special occasions, has now become a popular American experience.

Whether it be for a snack, sandwich or complete meal, visits to fine restaurants in our area offer a relaxing change for families, an opportunity for a change of pace, a chance to discuss business, or for some, a social gathering among friends.

And special occasions are still made even more special when celebrated in the atmosphere of fine dining experience.

Here in this special TOWNSMAN dining out section are several of the area's finest dining locations, offering the right atmosphere and the right menu for any occasion.

For the popular Kingston 1686 House, 1986 is a year to celebrate: it is the 300th anniversary of the restaurant's historic setting.

Nestled in an exquisite garden of dwarf evergreens and perennials on the Kingston, N.H., common (Route 111, Main Street), this lovely old house was originally built in 1686 by an Indian fighter, Ichabod Roby.

Such carefully preserved features as handcut beams, wide-pine floorboards, Indian shutters, a beehive bake-oven, 9-over-6 windows and a pulpit staircase are brought to life with flickering candlelight, six working fireplaces, a staff in period costume and handcrafted crewel pieces, all evoking the warmth and charm of yesteryear.

This enchanting atmosphere of days gone by complements the superb food and gracious service the Kingston 1686 House is famous for. At this family-run restaurant, all dinners are meticulously prepared to order from only the finest, freshest and purest ingredients available.

Prime-graded meats and fresh seafood highlight a varied menu that includes such specialties as live lobster, rack of lamb, Plume de Veau veal dishes, baked stuffed fresh haddock, chateaubriand, roast Long Island duckling and baked, stuffed El Presidenti jumbo shrimp.

A special feature of the Kingston House menu is the abundance of tempting extras that are served with all dinners — cheese dip and crackers, relish plate, hot bread and butter, salads with homemade dressings and two daily "tidbits" like marinated mushrooms, Greek meatballs or chicken wings.

The delectable desserts are all homemade, featuring pure, freshly-whipped cream and only real cream is served with coffee.

The Kingston House's wine cellar is one of the finest north of Boston, with over 400 selections, many of which are available by the glass from the restaurant's "Cruvinet" wine dispenser.

With two lounges and seven distinctive dining rooms of varying sizes, the Kingston 1686 House is also popular for private gatherings of all kinds, from a cozy party of 10 or more in one of the intimate dining rooms to a beautiful wedding or banquet of 150 in the lovely Linden Room.

While the Kingston House has expanded several times to accommodate its continuous growth, new additions to the building have maintained all the charm and character of the dining rooms occupying the original house, ell and barn.

The most recent addition is an elegant, glass-enclosed dining room which exemplifies the successful Kingston House formula of combining "the best of today" with "the best of yesterday" to create an unparalleled dining experience.

Service Top Consideration

Area restaurants joined the National Restaurant Association and allied industry trade groups in a nationwide drive to heighten pride in service throughout the giant $45 billion food service industry.

"Under the banner of 'We're Proud to Serve You!' area food service and lodging businesses are seeking to rekindle new enthusiasm for an old-fashioned concept—pride in service.

"The area," says a representative of the National Restaurant Association (NRA), "is to get hundreds of thousands of restaurant employees involved in a program that builds pride in accomplishment."

"We're Proud to Serve You!" offers a plan to improve service performance and morale together with a program to merchandise this effort in ways that capture the public's attention.

A wide array of promotional materials, including campaign buttons, posters, floor mats, counter cards and customer giveaway items will begin appearing soon in area restaurants, according to the NRA.

"Pride in service is a positive value that can be shared by both employee and customer at no additional cost to either. It follows that if food service employees take pride in what they do it will translate directly to restaurant customers in the form of more courteous and conscientious service," the NRA representative said.

The NRA further described the drive as "a positive, purposeful program that will help the industry win new friends. It represent a novel, fun approach to a situation that restaurant customers consider important when dining away from home."

Surveys show that when service falters in a restaurant, the quality of the total dining experience is diminished in the eyes of the consumer.

The NRA said food service and lodging businesses everywhere, regardless of size or type of service, are being encouraged to take part in the drive to promote pride in service. Potential for participation is great because the industry ranks first in the nation in terms of total number of business units.

There are an estimated 336,400 commercial restaurants and about 151,800 institutional food service operations in the U. S. today. The industry employs more than 3.8 million, including more teenagers and part-time workers than any other industry in the country.

'Dining Out' On A Diet

Your favorite restaurant with its luxurious decor, a solicitous maitre'd, a chef famous for pound-producing sauces and congenial dinner companions need not crumble the determination of the most dedicated dieter, according to Elaine Robin, director of a weight-watching group in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

"Special events," Robin noted, "provide a good opportunity to demonstrate that even the weight-conscious diner can enjoy eating out, provided he or she follows certain guidelines to avoid eating traps."

Some of her "dining out" guidelines are as follows:

1. Choose steak houses or seafood restaurants whenever possible.

If you go to another kind of restaurant you can always order meat, poultry, or fish broiled and ask that your vegetables be prepared without butter.

2. Don't pour over the menu.

If you are on a weight reduction program, you know what you can have.

Ask for it.

Be cordial to the maitre'd and send your compliments to the chef for helping you stay on your diet.

3. Order a salad or coffee immediately.

Move the basket of rolls to the other side of the table.

If you have something to eat that meets your diet requirements, and if you are not confronted with the temptation to nibble, you will find it much easier to follow your food program

National Restaurant Group Offers Facts On Eating Out

Here are some facts about eating out from the National Restaurant Association:

- The average person eat out 3.5 times a week.
- The average per-person check is $3.50.
- Lunch is the meal most likely to be eaten out.
- Men eat away from home more frequently than women.

- Singles eat out more often than families.

- As income increases, consumers eat away from home more frequently.

- 78 percent of all families report eating at restaurants regularly.

Survey Says Millions Enjoy Dining Out

The art of dining out is enjoyed by millions each year according to a survey made by the National Restaurant Association (NRA) which states that one out of every three food dollars is spent for meals outside the home.

The NRA also reports that one out of every three persons in the United States enjoys dining out, be it for a snack, lunch or dinner.

Better than 50 percent of the families included in the survey said they had eaten out in the prior week.

Why do people leave the home to dine?

There are no doubt as many answers as there are people but one major reason is that it is an enjoyable activity in which the entire family can participate. But, and this is the big factor, no member of the family has to wash the dishes or clean up the dining room.

People are naturally drawn to good food, well prepared and served with style. And it is to such restaurants that the American family turns to for a change, whether it is once a week, one a month or just to celebrate a birthday, a promotion or an anniversary.

Such restaurants are becoming more popular each year according to the most recent NRA survey.

Restauranteurs Respond To NRA Survey

A survey was conducted among 200 members selected at random from the National Restaurant Association membership, with proportional representation from all 48 continental states.

Some statistics on respondents:

1. Seventy-four percent characterize themselves as family service, medium-check; 17% say they're white-cloth, high-check types; and 9% say they're fast food and carry-out places.

2. The sample says 17% of their revenues come from breakfast, 30% from luncheon, and 53% from dinner.

3. The average restaurant in the sample redecorates (paints or washes) every 2.5 years, while it completely remodels and refurnishes every 5.7 years.

4. The sample says 54% of customers prefer to sit in side chairs (not arms), 30% like arm chairs, 6% like swivel chairs, and 10% prefer booths.

Some conclusions.

1. Dining out involved companionship, even at breakfast. Most people eat with two persons or more: 38% with two more at breakfast, 48% at lunch, 57% at dinner.

2. Most dining patrons (47% to 59%) prefer to sit at tables rather than in booths or at the counter.

3. Anywhere from 54% to 61% of diners are men.

4. Men spend less time at dinner (1 hour 35 minutes vs. 1 hour 30 minutes).

5. Breakfast averages $1.12 in price, luncheons $1.70 and dinners $3.95. Luncheons and dinners are higher-priced at private parties in the same restaurants. Prices have stayed approximately the same over the past year.

6. Men tip consistently higher than women: 13% vs. 9% at breakfast, 14% vs. 10% at lunch, and 15% vs. 12% at dinner.

7. Tastes in foods vary between men and women. At breakfast, over two-thirds of men prefer eggs with some form of breakfast meat (bacon, sausage, ham), while almost half of the women prefer rolls or toast. At luncheon beef is preferred by the men, while the women want salads. At dinner, nearly half the men like steak, while the same number of women prefer seafood.

8. Men and women see almost eye-to-eye on the ordering of dessert; only about a quarter to a third do so. Pies are the preferred luncheon dessert for those men who do order, and they're also the leading favorite with women. At dinner, pies lead with men, but women prefer ice cream.

9. Where drinks are available, the men will outdrink the women: 1.5 vs. 1.1 cocktails at lunch, 2.5 vs. 1.5 cocktails at dinner.

10. Cash is the preferred method of paying for a meal. 95% at breakfast, 89% at luncheon, 84% at dinner.

The word "tips" is said to have originated from the first letters of the phrase "to insure prompt service." Since most tipping is done after the service has been performed, it would appear to reward rather than to insure good service.

But why should tipping be a prerequisite for being served promptly and courteously? Frankly, I do not think that it is. Rather, I believe that the custom must have originated as a sort of status symbol on the part of the served to demonstrate their ability to pay for special treatment.

For many years, waitresses, waiters, bellboys and other service employees in many large hotels, restaurants and clubs not only worked for their tips, alone but actually paid for the privilege of working. With the advent of the minimum wage laws, this custom was abolished.

Silverware Designed In England

For centuries England was a world leader in manufacturing silver.

The British aristocracy encouraged the design and production of magnificent gold and silver tableware, flatware, lighting devices and objects of vertu.

Laws strictly controlled silversmiths and governed silver content with elaborate methods of identification under the direction of the Goldsmiths Company.

During the colonial period of our history, the austere life here and the demands of establishing homes in the wilderness discouraged the development of the American silversmith. For this reason, silver of our colonial period is extremely rare and valuable.

Some Places Now Add 'Gratuity' To Your Bill

Restaurants and hotels across the country have begun to adopt the European practice of automatically adding to the customer's bill a "gratuity" or service charge.

Rather than allowing the patron to decide when and how much to tip, as has been traditional in this country, a predetermined percentage of the food and beverage total is added before the patron receives the bill.

A Gallup Organization survey of diners' attitudes toward the two systems of tipping revealed 88 percent of those responding preferred the traditional method of tipping.

Only 9 percent expressed a preference for an automatic surcharge of 15 percent.

A nationally representative sample of adults was asked the following question:

When dining out in a restaurant for dinner, which of the following methods of tipping would you prefer — the restaurant adds 15 percent of your total bill to the check to be given as a tip, or you personally decide on the amount of money to be given as a tip?

While only a small number of consumers said they would prefer the 15 percent surcharge, even fewer of those people surveyed who dine out often said they would prefer the European method of tipping.

Only 7 percent of those who eat out on the average of four or more times a week reported they would prefer a 15 percent surcharge added to the check. Yet the automatic tip was preferred by 11 percent of those who dine out infrequently.

A preference for the automatic surcharge was highest among adults age 65 and older and women who are not employed outside the home, two groups that dine out relatively infrequently.

It is apparent that most consumers, especially those who dine out often, want to make their own decisions about the amount of tip to leave when they have dinner out. This preference may not be based on the amount of money involved, but perhaps because customers feel that personal discretion on tipping is the best way that they can ensure prompt and courteous service.

In 1457, the Scottish Parliament outlawed football and golf because it felt that the two sports had lured young Scots from the more soldierly exercise of archery.
